Maintaining clearings (A)

Cette clairière appartient aux milieux ouverts. Ces milieux lumineux abritent de nombreuses espèces (fleurs, papillons sauterelles...) Certaines d'entre-elles sont même spécifiques aux lisières, « interfaces » entre forêts et clairières. Ainsi la préservation de milieux ouverts, en régression sur le massif, constitue un enjeu important pour la biodiversité.

Senescent stands (B)

Les îlots de sénescence sont des zones de protection au milieu de zones de production. Répartis sur l'ensemble du massif forestier exploité, ils permettent une libre évolution de la forêt. L'apparition progressive de bois mort, d'arbres de grande dimension présentant des cavités ou autres « micro-habitats » favorise l'installation de tout un cortège d'espèces spécifiques. : insectes saproxyliques (mangeurs de bois mort) et champignons mais aussi oiseaux et mammifères.

River capture (C)

Violent precipitation and the steep gradient of Mediterranean torrents cause regressive (i.e. upstream) erosion of the valleys through which they flow. This erosion can invert the sense of flow and thus “capture” for the Mediterranean a waterway that had, until then, flowed into the Atlantic. One example is the Hérault with its waterfalls, the capture being located at the falls. The Hérault and the Dauphine brook used to flow via L'Espérou into the Dourbie... River pebbles found around the village by geologists attest to the existence of a waterway in the past.

Archeosmart (Marc Limousin) (E)

Smartphone imprints appear on the rocks: fossils of the present that will become mysterious in the future. This carved stone, like the cup-shaped marks and other rock art of the region, discloses history revealed in matter and resonates with Malraux's phrase: “The future is a present given to us by the past”.
